

UC Davis Law Review 51st Annual Symposium

Immigration Law & Resistance

Ensuring a Nation of Immigrants

UC DAVIS LAW REVIEW

Save the Date:

Friday, October 20, 2017

8:30A.M. - 5:00P.M., with a reception to follow
UC Davis School of Law, King Hall

A flurry of executive orders banned the entry of non-citizens from Muslim-majority countries and suspended the admission of refugees; increased the enforcement of immigration law through criminal law; and ordered the construction of a wall to prevent the migration of Latinxs.

Massive resistance to these immigration enforcement priorities ensued in various forms—through litigation, state and local legal and policy changes, individual and community-based advocacy, and support from churches, businesses and other organizations. This Symposium examines the different forms of resistance employed by various groups, the legal challenges they faced, and the lessons they learned.

Panel Topics Include:

- The Future of DACA and Prosecutorial Discretion
- The Economics of Immigration
- Defying the Criminalization and Deportation of Immigrants
- Protecting Refugees: Taking a Stance Against Detention, Unfairness, and Exploitation
- Sanctuary and Beyond: State, City, and Individual Resistance

More information available at lawreview.law.ucdavis.edu