

IRW DISTINGUISHED LECTURE SERIES

The Perils of Populism

FEMINIST CONVERSATIONS

Featured artwork: "People vs. Military" by Eric Drooker (www.drooker.com), courtesy of the artist.

A right-wing populism that scapegoats vulnerable populations is emerging globally. In a series of conversations, we ask: How can a feminist lens diagnose the current political crisis, and help us to move toward a more democratic future?

Free and open to the public.

Ruth Dill Johnson Crockett Building
162 Ryders Lane
Rutgers University-New Brunswick

The Institute for Research on Women (IRW) advances innovative feminist scholarship on women, gender, and sexuality. The 2017-18 IRW Distinguished Lecture Series is supported by the School of Arts and Sciences at Rutgers-New Brunswick.

RUTGERS

School of Arts and Sciences

NOVEMBER 2, 2017 • 4:30PM

Kenyon Farrow activist, writer

L.A. Kauffman author, organizer

Robyn Magalit Rodriguez Asian American
Studies, University of California, Davis

Organizing, Resisting, Surviving

From the massive Women's March on Washington, to groups like Indivisible and immigrant rights efforts, in recent months we have seen an extraordinary outpouring of popular resistance. This panel brings together experts on social movements who are also activists to probe the history of grassroots organizing, the uses of different strategies (such as marches, boycotts, direct action, and community organizing), and how to best get involved.